

"BIRTH OF SOIL" SHOWN THROUGH MEDIUM OF FILMS

NEWTOWN PROGRAM

NEWTOWN, May 25 — Mr. Paul L. Gruber, of Quakertown, was the first speaker at the opening session of Bucks County Natural Science Association held at Newtown Friends Meeting House, Saturday, with 25 in attendance.

Mr. Gruber presented the subject "Birth of the Soil" by showing sound films in color which are now in the film library of Bucks County, Department of Public Instruction. The material for the films was gathered largely by New York and Brooklyn Botanic Gardens and produced under the Conservation Foundation. It was pointed out that "The lives of us all depend on the six inch top soil, which has taken centuries to produce. Air, rocks, sun light and water all played a part. Temperatures bring about expansion of rocks. Glaciers act as a giant file. Bacteria, insects, earth worms are aids in producing good top soil. Lichen are nature's pioneers in plant life. Only 25% of U. S. land has top soil suited to crops and of these crops, great quantities of soil is lost yearly by erosion. Forests are reservoirs and guardians of soil. Floods, drought and wind are dangers in soil saving. Owners of land should realize that they are merely trustees who must pass their acres on to others without despoiling the forest or depleting the humus of the soil."

The second speaker was Lester S. Thomas, of Richboro, an active member of the Neshaminy Valley Nature Club. He had been asked to talk on "Beaks, Tails, Posture and Wing-beats of Birds." He said the colors and songs of birds are far more glamorous subjects but a real bird student is much interested in identification of birds at a distance through some special motion or shape of wing. Beaks are hard to see in many instances in bird study, but they are of maximum use to the bird who can sometimes exist without a wing or a foot but not if the beak is gone. "The beak is the food-getter, the construction implement and the defense weapon. Many a carpenter's tool has its counterpart

CHARLES W. HUNTER

Charles Hunter is county chairman of the U. S. Treasury Department's volunteer Savings Bonds committee. That means he's the Treasury Department's representative on matters concerning Savings Bonds. And when you remember that 80 million Americans own Savings Bonds today, you can see how important a job that is.

Yes, 80 million of us own Savings Bonds. We own more today than ever before—far more than during the war. Seven billion dollars more than on V-J Day. Today's total is 53 billion dollars. And almost 32 billion of that is in the popular Series E Bonds.

More than 7,500,000 Americans are buying Savings Bonds today on the payroll savings plan. More than 100,000 self-employed Americans—doctors, lawyers, farmers, owners of small businesses—have signed with their banks on the Bond-A-Month plan. Still other men and women are buying bonds on a "whenever I can" basis.

It's the job of the county chairmen to make all this possible in our county. He is a leader of volunteers like you, who arranges for such things as: encouraging employers to put in the Payroll Savings Plan and explaining to work-

DOROTHY RITTER HAS A TRIP TO HOLLAND

Tells of Sparkling Window Panes and Perfection of The Tulips

WILL GO TO ITALY

A visit to Holland is described in a remarkably interesting manner by Miss Dorothy Ritter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ritter, 558 Swain street. The young woman, who was a former WAC corporal, and who is now employed by the United States government in Frankfurt, Germany, has visited a number of countries during the past several years. The visit to Holland, made in company of two girl friends, is described in a letter here given in part.

"Well, our trip to Holland over the Easter holidays was wonderful. It certainly is a lovely little country. So very clean! You know, you always heard that the Dutch people scrub even the streets. Well, it is true. And windows, I've never seen such sparkling ones in my life. I swear there isn't a dirty window in all of Holland.

"Amsterdam is a very nice, modern city. Our hotel was in Amsterdam, and we took daily trips to the surrounding area from there. One of our trips was to Volendam, where the people still wear the colorful old Dutch costumes, complete with wooden shoes. I bought two dolls dressed exactly like the people. I'm going to try to get dolls like that from each country that I visit and add these that I get over here to the Chinese dolls. Then some day Diane will be able to take them all to school with her.

"Our guide was very good and

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

(Distributed by International News Service)

Seeing that FDR Jr., was born north of the border some Republicans have stopped worrying about the possibility of him running for Chief Executive. ... They seem to think this is Canada's problem.

But one pessimist recalls that Iceland was moved into the Western Hemisphere with a pen stroke. He says "How do we know Campobello won't be towed down to the Maine coast on a dark night in the map department?"

He has been suspicious of longitude and latitude since the Monroe Doctrine was found sitting on a hilltop in Greece.

He wants to tighten the Constitution. Where it says "No person except a natural born citizen . . . shall be eligible" he wants to insert "and this means YOI!"

But it's typical of Republicans to worry more about who the Democrats are going to run than about who THEY are going to run.

If Joe Louis fought that way, he'd still be studying Jimmy Braddock's style.

A SNIFF OF DISASTER

To those who live and work above ground, the first trip through any of New York's traffic tunnels is almost always a harrowing experience. Few do not have a claustrophobic desire to get out into the open.

The greatest fear seems to be that something will happen to the engine, or the car, leaving the passengers stranded in the dim and noisy tiled pipe. It is easy to sniff disaster in the place.

Recently the situation that millions of drivers have feared actually took place. A truck loaded with a highly inflammable chemical cargo exploded in the Holland Tunnel, setting off a series of other explosions. Drivers reacted in entirely human fashion and dashed for the exits.

Disaster crews, trained for just this sort of thing, went into action. Remarkably, there were no fatalities, although 66 persons were burned or overcome by escaping chemical fumes. The most horrid possibility, a rupture and flooding of the tube, never did happen, although news pictures showed the tube a shambles. In three days normal traffic was restored.

Explosive cargoes have been outlawed from the tunnel for years, and a system of checking will probably go into effect now. New York traffic authorities — and hundreds of tunnel users — have now had a real sniff of disaster. It was a near thing, and a lesson learned the hard way.

DEATH TAKES A HOLIDAY

Planners are much concerned about the goal of leveling the crests and hollows of the nation's economy, which they proclaim should be as placid as a pond on a windless day. When the economic sea is too rough, some people drown and others get seasick.

So, the planners are trying, among other things, to confound Joe Stalin by proving that the waves need not be so rough as to cause the final shipwreck of capitalism. But there's a limit to putting ceilings over and floors under things.

People in the casket business, for instance, would benefit if the government would find a way to keep deaths from falling off. (But, unlike people in many other lines, they wouldn't think of obtaining such controls!) A 2 per cent drop in the death rate on top of the present disinflation, is hurting the sale of caskets, and some funeral directors find themselves overstocked.

This is one thing the government won't try to control. If it did, the American people would get themselves a new government. No matter what it does to business and no matter what inducements the government may offer, people will continue to insist on their constitutional right not to die unless they have to.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Amenemhat Was Right

Washington, May 25. IN the interesting pamphlet on the Gulbenkian collection issued by the National Gallery of Art and written by Mr. John Walker, chief curator, Amenemhat I, the great Twelfth Dynasty King of ancient Egypt, is quoted as follows: "Be on thy guard against subordinates: approach them not and be not alone. Trust not a brother, know not a friend and make not for thyself intimates that profligate nothing. If thou sleepest, do thou, guard thine heart. For in the day of adversity a man hath no adherents."

THIS grim and lonely discipline engendered by one of the great rulers of men is, perhaps, much too drastic to apply to Presidents in this country and in these times. Nevertheless President Truman undoubtedly would benefit if he should grasp the entirely sound idea back of this age-old precept. For a considerable portion of his present troubles stems from his failure to understand that except rarely a President cannot afford to say or write things confidentially and in private he would not say or write publicly. Other men may be blunt and outspoken when surrounded by friends but not a President—anyhow, not without risk.

"TRUST not a brother, know not a friend," as old Amenemhat said, may be too rigid a restriction. But at least a President ought to trust exceedingly few and those only after they have been thoroughly tested. He should select his intimates with great care and in talk with them measure well his words. It would be better if he did not indulge in loose conversation about public men and public affairs with anyone, but under no circumstances should he do so with those not closely bound to him by ties of personal loyalty and friendship. Yet, in the past three weeks he has done exactly that in several instances with resulting embarrassment and damage to himself.

THE first was when he declared that one trouble with Congress was that there were "too many Byrds." Mr. Truman thought when he said that he was having a "confidential conversation." It remained confidential just as long as it took the men to whom he talked to get to their hotel. The effect was highly favorable to Senator Byrd and damaging to Mr. Truman in more ways than one. His friends have not made things better by their strained explanations, the last and latest of which is that the President was speaking humorously. Very soon after that Mr. Truman held another "confidential conversation" with a congressman from Wisconsin who began to apologize for the senators from that State. "Oh," said Mr. Truman, in effect, "they are pretty bad but not the worst. The worst pair are from Missouri and the next worst from Indiana. I'll grant you Wisconsin is third." Well, that stayed confidential until the congressman met a newspaper friend from his home State. Now it isn't confidential at all. It did not receive the publicity of the Byrd incident because the criticized senators did not have the same national prominence. But it has been published in a number of papers, and it can be stated that the Messrs. Donnell and Kem, of Missouri; Capehart and Jenner, of Indiana; Wiley and McCarthy, of Wisconsin, are not unaware of it. These are all Republicans. It is true, but Mr. Truman's confidential comments are well calculated to make them personal as well as political enemies.

THE third incident was a "confidential" letter written by Mr. Truman to a labor leader which did not stay confidential more than a short while. Its contents were construed as a criticism of Mr. Truman's House supporters for compromising on his demand for outright Taft-Hartley repeal. One of those was Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, who had led the Truman fight in the House and the Truman letter was said by unfriendly writers to be a "slap" at Mr. Rayburn.

A considerable stink was stirred up and the White House issued a denial that any "slap" had been aimed at anyone. This denial was accompanied by the rather weird explanation that the uncompromising interpretation was based on typographical errors.

AS such incidents accumulate, an ill will that is entirely unnecessary increases. Mr. Truman is a simple and sincere man. He has strong likes and dislikes. He loves to speak his mind freely to those he considers friendly. There is something engaging about this quality, about his impulsive off-the-record utterances. But it seems too bad he does not realize that the old Amenemhat was right and that rulers of nations cannot afford to indulge their impulses nor trust even all their intimates. They are not ordinary men. Their power is so great that even their casual words are important and when repeated are always exaggerated. To make Mr. Truman's risk more pronounced there is in Washington that hostile group of "liberal" press columnists, radio commentators and politicians, affiliated with the old Roosevelt regime, eager to take advantage of every slip. Another fact is that there are "leaks" in his own Cabinet and even among those, outside the Cabinet, regarded as "close advisers." It would seem that the more Mr. Truman ponders the trouble caused by his wholly natural desire to be sincere and frank with those he likes and the more he thinks about these "leaks," the sadder he must think the Amenemhat precept.

Judge Keller Directs Jury to Acquit Woman

other car being green, and driven by a girl who was wearing a red sweater.

Trooper McDonough testified that when he arrived at the scene of the accident, the girl's car was gone. He said the soldier's car had been struck in the rear. The trooper said that after a hurried trip to the Nazareth Hospital he and another trooper searched the surrounding country for a green car and a girl with a red sweater.

Later in the night, or the early morning of May 3, Trooper McDonough said that they located the green car on Boundbrook Road. The defendant was in charge of the car and the car had a flat tire. She identified herself as Miss Kurz, the trooper said, and admitted that she had been involved in an accident with a soldier's car.

"She told me that she had inquired whether anyone was hurt, at the scene, and that she had left her name and address with someone at the scene, who had appeared when the crash occurred," Trooper McDonough testified.

Judge Keller also ruled that in this case, a verdict of not guilty was to be rendered but that costs be paid by the county, since there was no evidence that Miss Kurz had been in any way negligent or had done anything out of the way. Members of the jury who heard the evidence and rendered the directed verdict included Mrs. Natalie H. Ashbridge, Holicon, foreman; George W. Young, Riegelsville; Clara E. Snyder, Bristol; John B. Richard, Argus; J. Bernard Hagan, Richlandtown; J. Samuel Althouse, Ferkasie; Charles Osterman, Andalusia; Albert H. Barndt, Perkaskie; Henry R. Eastwood, Pineville; Florence H. Brantigan, Bristol RD 2; and Hazel M. Minster, Cornwells Heights.

Charles R. Hess, of Phila., who pleaded guilty to driving while drunk on a Bucks county highway when he was arrested by a State trooper, was fined $150 and costs by Judge Keller yesterday.

Frank T. Perry, Jr., of Newtown, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk and was fined $150 and costs.

Claude A. Ditzler, of Tullytown, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk on March 19, on Farragut avenue, Bristol, when he was arrested by Patrolman Vincent Farragall, of the Bristol police. He was examined

On July 4, 1864, Mrs. Sophie Keller Hall was on her way to the Lutheran Cemetery at Boalsburg, near State College to place flowers on a soldier's grave. She met Miss Emma Hunter (later Mrs. James T. Stuart) enroute to the same churchyard to decorate the grave of her father, a surgeon in the Union Army. They decided to decorate all soldier graves in the cemetery. Their action, regarded as Memorial Day's first observance, became annual practice there, and the custom spread throughout the country.

* Memorial Day this year will be celebrated on two week ends at Boalsburg. On May 22, the 26th Division will hold its annual memorial service at the division shrine at Boalsburg. On the week end beginning May 23, there will be parade, carnival, memorial service, etc.

ers why they benefit from it; arranging with bankers for the Bond-A-Month plan; helping the schools get children interested in regular savings through savings bonds and stamps; getting newspapers to contribute space for messages like this one.

By doing these things, our county chairman is helping build the financial stability of the whole country. Because these Savings Bonds remain right here in our own country. They represent deferred spending—money saved in today's good times to be spent later on when needed. Think what a tremendous financial reserve that gives the county—what a wonderful cushion against a possible business recession!

All this your county chairman does, without one cent of pay! He donates his time and his services because he knows the importance of the Savings Bonds program. He deserves the support of the whole community. He needs volunteer help for his committee. Won't you offer your services, too?

Estates Auxiliary Has A Number of Projects

Members of the Women's Auxiliary, Fleetwing Estates Civic Association, met last evening at the home of Mrs. William Smith. Mrs. Carl Lindberg, president, opened the meeting. New members present included Mrs. Robert Green, Mrs. William Drumel and Mrs. R. S. Bartholomew.

Plans were reviewed and final arrangements made for the covered dish luncheon to take place today noon on the lawn of 37 Fleetwing Drive, home of Mrs. Lawrence Harrison.

Mrs. Robert Hyatt, secretary, announced that no reply had yet been received from organizations she had written regarding sources of shade trees, to be set out in the community.

Mrs. Lindberg gave information regarding the Brownie Troop which the Women's Auxiliary is sponsoring; the troop's first meeting was held this same day, with two girls from Fleetwing Estates being members. She said it was customary for a sponsoring organization to have a member attend meetings of the troop committee. Mrs. Hyatt volunteered for this.

Considerable discussion arose concerning the possible formation here of a Boy Scout Cub Pack. Information on this subject will be obtained by the June meeting. Mrs. Lindberg also informed the group that there is soon to be a chance of local training of scoutmasters and den mothers.

Financial support for several organizations was discussed. Mrs. William Eckstein, treasurer, suggested that some new methods of raising money for the auxiliary would be in order. Mrs. Walter Cooper described the "pig in a basket" plan whereby all the neighbors in a community were afforded a chance to contribute in a friendly way. The group agreed to try the plan, with Mrs. Cooper starting the "pig" on his journey.

Mrs. Robert Green suggested that a group outing might be fun to work towards during the summer. More information concerning places and tours will be available at the June meeting, which will be held at 37 Fleetwing Drive. Coffee, tea and shortcake were served.

YOU CAN BUILD YOUR OWN

THIS ATTRACTIVELY COMPACT LITTLE house, designed for a suburban dwelling, can be built, says Douglas Tuomey, for under $5,000—if you do the construction job yourself. It is one of eight homes pictured, with floor plans, in Mr. Tuomey's new book: "How To Build Your Own House."

By MARION CLYDE MCCARROLL

SO you're going to build a house—some day! You have the lot, but costs are higher than you feel you can handle right now, so you're waiting.

Well, have you ever thought of getting around the difficulty by going ahead and building the house yourself? Yes, that's right; with your own two hands.

Don't think you could? Maybe it's not so hard as you think.

In fact, it must be a perfectly feasible job for the average man to tackle, since one of America's famous building authorities, Douglas Tuomey, has written a book to explain to that average man just how he can do it.

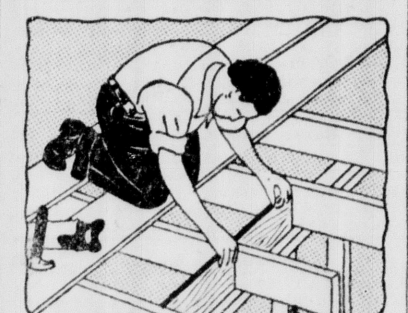

And that's not all. Not only does he make clear every step in the construction of a house from laying the foundation to the last detail of the interior finish, but he tells how to do it for less than $5,000. The title of the book puts the whole thing in a few words: "How to Build Your Own House For Less Than $5,000."

To prove it, Mr. Tuomey shows you eight different types of houses that you can put up yourself, all, of course, under that stipulated $5,000. One of them is a ranch house; another, a country house; still another, a house in the woods; and a fourth, a house for the shore. "The Suburban House," "The Lake House," "The River House" and "The Bay House" are the other four. Architect's blueprints are available at nominal cost for any one of them. The book itself costs $2.95, and should be available in your local bookstore.

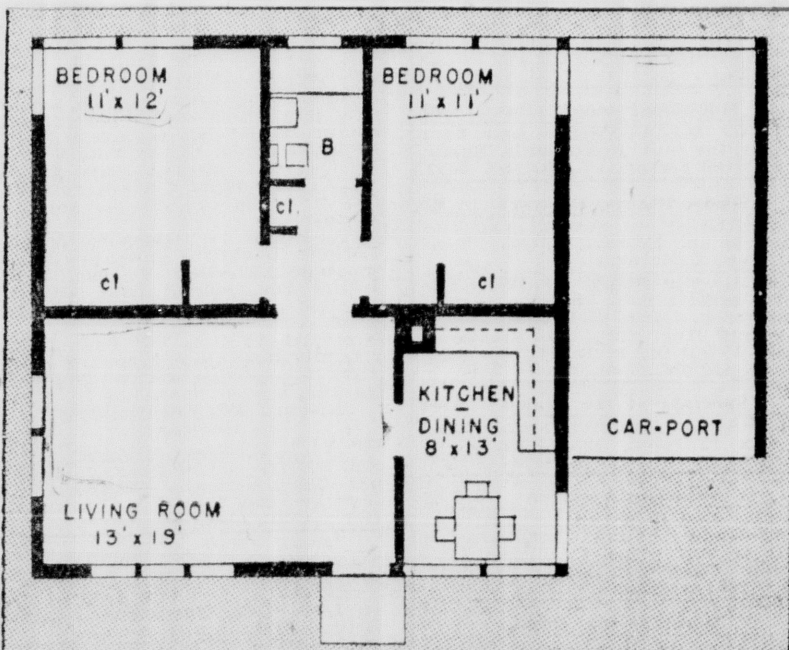

This section of the book, showing the houses, with their floor plans, comes first. After that, Mr. Tuomey gets right down to the business of construction, beginning with preparing the ground for building. Installing the foundations, of course, immediately follows, then the building of the frame of the house and the roof, sheathing the frame, setting in doors and windows and applying the exterior finish.

Putting in the room partitions and otherwise finishing the interior comes next.

How to insulate the house,

AND HERE the author shows the amateur builder how simple it is to lay rafters on top of the wall frame.

THIS IS THE FLOOR PLAN of the house shown at the top of the page. Blue prints are available at nominal cost for this and other houses in the book.

Ancient Trenton Diner Moved To Morrisville Site

MORRISVILLE, May 25 — Ted Forker's diner—an old landmark, has been transported across the Delaware river from Trenton to here.

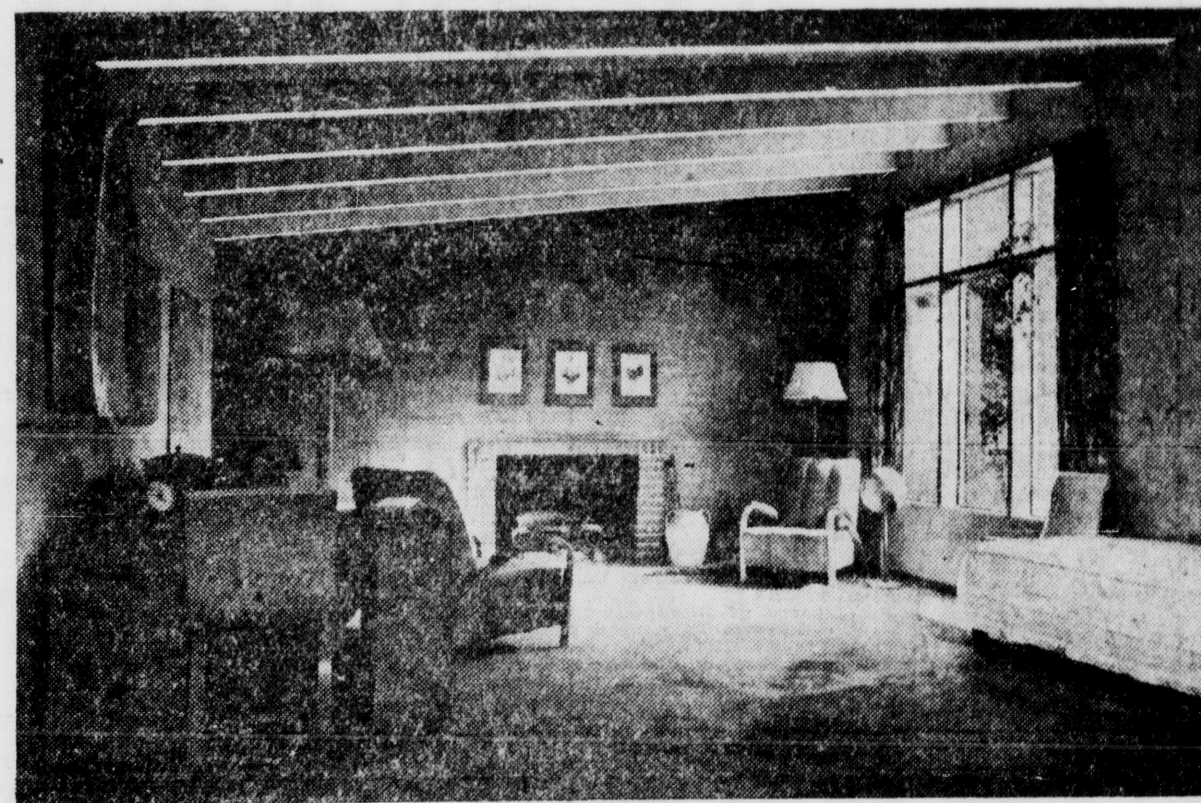

Considered one of the oldest diners in the country, the old-fashioned eatery was literally on the move.

Monday, the Steven S. Erdelsky rigging company took the diner from its Perry street location near the PRR crossing at Trenton to its new owner, Mrs. Anne C. O'Daniels, of 155 Philadelphia avenue, Morrisville.

Mrs. O'Daniels expects to repair the institution and put it into operation again. She says the diner is 62 years old. Its new location has not been decided. Mrs. O'Daniels expects to retain the same pattern of the car during renovations. She recalled the diner once was located at State and Broad streets, Trenton, and in the old days was pulled around the city by horses.

Roy Scarborough, of 506 Perry street, purchased the diner after Forker died and had it moved to a vacant lot directly across the street. Mrs. O'Daniels bought it from Scarborough.

TIMBERED CEILINGS AND PICTURE windows are by no means beyond the average amateur's skill, Mr. Tuomey believes, especially when guided by a host of sketches and photographs, of which these shown are samples.

and how to install heating, wiring and plumbing, are described in the same painstaking detail. Separate chapters tell you where to buy building materials and supplies, and how to handle housebuilding tools. There's a chapter on building your own furniture, with exact instructions for such useful things as built-in beds, chests of drawers, bookcases and wall seats; another on painting the house, and one that discusses the making of lawns, walks and driveways.

Practical help in the matter of financing the owner-built house is also given. And to forestall the discouragement that may beset the amateur builder when he makes mistakes there's a section cheerfully devoted to "How to Handle Errors, Shortages and Disappointments."

The book is thoroughly illustrated from cover to cover with hundreds of diagrams and photographs so that you have each thing you attempt right before your eyes as you go.

Mr. Tuomey is completely optimistic about the ability of the amateur as a builder. In his introduction he makes the flat assertion that: "The average physically capable man can build his own house with or without the assistance of rough labor."

So, if you have that lot, why wait any longer for that new home?

here—as the forceps beak of the vireo, the scoop of the swifts, the awl of the creeper, the chisel of the wood pecker. Finches, sparrows and grosbeaks are seed crackers. The tail of the brow creeper is of unusual curve. A whole group of birds are among the tail wagers. Some of the birds of prey have very erect posture. Short broad wings as of rail and grouse are for quick starting. The long pointed wing of the gull is for slow starting but fast long flight. The soft broad wing of an owl makes him move somewhat like a big moth." The whistle of the wings of the pheasants and the woodcock and the golden eye duck and the dove were compared. The feet of birds were also considered, the weak footed king fisher, the rudder foot of the blue bill, the three front and one hind claw of the perchers being among the number. Mr. Thomas illustrated his unusual talk throughout with slides which his son operated.

Matters of business conducted by President Stevenson W. Fletcher covered the naming of Miss Marion Longshore, of Langhorne, to succeed Mrs. Mary W. Peters, resigned, as Delaware Valley Naturalist Union representative; and the reception of four new members. Attention was called to the 15 minute nature talk given each week day morning over the radio by Ivan Sanderson. The next meeting will be a field day trip, June 18th.

Senior Corps To Receive New Parade Uniforms

All members of the Senior Corps of the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, will report at the post home on Thursday at 7:30 p. m., when new uniforms will be distributed and practice will be held. This will be the last practice before Memorial Day.

The corps will report at the post home on Monday, May 30th, at 9 a. m., to turn out with the post for the Memorial Day parade and services at the Legion Memorial Plot at Bristol Cemetery. This will be the first public appearance of the corps and, while the uniforms are not the brilliant hues usually associated with Legion corps, they will be snappy in appearance.

After returning to the post, the corps will have lunch and then travel to Fallsington, where they will participate in the parade and Memorial Day exercises with the Fallsington Post of the American Legion.

The corps still has a few vacancies for former cadet buglers. Any former cadet buglers, preferably veterans, who are interested, may report on Thursday evening or any Monday evening, except next Monday, Memorial Day.

Christ Home Worker Is Bristol Banquet Speaker

The annual mother and daughter banquet of Bristol Women's Christian Temperance Union was held last evening in St. James' parish house, the women of St. James' Circle preparing the meal.

The blessing was asked by the Rev. George E. Boswell, rector of St. James, after which a moment of silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Therna Webb—at the time of her recent death the president of the union.

Mrs. George W. Bruden, vice-president, was toastmistress. Group singing was enjoyed by all. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. Elwood R. Dyer, Jr., and Mrs. William Hakes. The speaker was Robert Isbell, a worker at Christ Home, Warmington, who told of the work that has been done there during the 42 years it has operated to provide a home for destitute children and aged people. The home is operated entirely on faith, he informed, no solicitation of funds ever having been made. The "workers" are those who have given themselves to work without remuneration, but trust, through prayer, that their personal needs will be met. These individuals are responsible for the work of the home. There are "auxiliaries" who go to the home for a time to assist with the work—and the "helpers"—not responsible for the work—but who are under the direction of the worker body. These may receive remuneration as is agreed between them and the worker body and may be discharged at any time. "Their whole desire is to aid destitute ones who cannot be helped in other ways, and to prove that God, in answer to prayer, only, will support this work," the speaker said.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Arthur D. Sargis
Pastor
Edgely Presbyterian Church

Dear Father, we thank Thee for this day. Its record has been made. Perhaps we have increased our funds at the expense of friends. It may be that we have compromised where we should have exhibited strong character. Our emphasis may have been on the making of a living instead of the building of a life. For the strength we used this day we give Thee thanks. For the misuse of that strength we are sorry and ask Thy forgiveness. Help us to be better on the morrow. Hear us for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Rickner and Basil Marandale, of Philadelphia, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Buck, Trenton avenue. Mrs. Rickner remained for an indefinite visit.

Mrs. A. Gilbert, Bristol Terrace I., has returned home from St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, N. J., where she had been a patient last week following an operation.

Among the prizes to be offered at the card party given by the Mother's Association, Bristol public schools, in the high school cafeteria, this evening, will be: Whistling tea set.

BRISTOL HIGH WINS CHAMPIONSHIP OF LOWER BUCKS COUNTY SCHOOL LEAGUE; DEFEATS LANGHORNE NINE

Bristol High won the Lower Bucks County Championship yesterday afternoon when the arm of "Jimmy" Morrell and the bat of "Bill" Moll combined to produce a 2-0 victory over Langhorne High on Memorial Park field.

It was the sixth straight win for the Warriors and brought their league record to eight wins and one defeat. The closest team to Bristol has won four and lost four.

It was also the second consecutive baseball crown brought to Bristol by Coach Jerry Bloom. Bloom won last season and since coming to Bristol has won two baseball championships and two basketball championships of the Lower Bucks County League.

Morrell, diminutive hurler, was in excellent form as he allowed the visiting team but two hits. Both of these blows came in the second frame, one of the two innings in which the Bristol moundsman appeared to be in trouble. He was given fine support by his mates who came through when the fielding was needed.

With the stick, Moll, husky first-sacker, had three hits, one a triple. It was his three-bagger which spelled doom for the Redskins. In the fourth, Moll stepped to the plate with Frank Barbetta on first. He delivered a long three-base knock which enabled Barbetta to score. Moll scored on a hit by Frank Rich.

They were the only markers of the contest as DiTono pitched good ball for the Langhorne team. In the sixth, Mercer batted for DiTono and "Charlie" Maurer pitched the final half of the frame for Coach "Jim" Ekl's team.

Morrell retired the Langhorne team in order in the first but ran into difficulty in the second. After Fizzano struck out, Mongillo singled and stole second. Marlin walked but was picked off first. Barbetta to Moll Hofmann hit safely but Kaupp flied out to Barbetta for the third out.

Only three batters faced Morrell in each of the next two innings but in the 6th, trouble again crossed the path of the Bristol moundsman. After Mercer went out, Calvin Tobias walked. Caulfield was safe on an error by Vito Basco. Gring went out, Morrell to Moll. "Army" Fizzano was walked to load the bases. But Mongillo's best was a fly which Rich collared in left field.

Three ground balls were handled for putouts by the Bristol infielders in the seventh.

Bristol had an opportunity of adding to its score in the sixth. After Barbetta flied out, Moll singled and Rich was hit with a pitched ball. Petrizzi sacrificed but Joe Dominick grounded out to Hofmann to end the frame.

The Warriors meet Council Rock tomorrow afternoon on Memorial Park field.

Lineups:

PENNSBURY RALLIES IN SEVENTH AND WINS

RICHBORO, May 25 — Pennsbury High rallied in the seventh inning to score four runs to deadlock the score in its game with Council Rock yesterday and then went on to score a run in the extra session to win out by a 6-5 score. It was a Lower Bucks County League game.

The Falcons were trailing, 5-1, as they took their last turn with the stick and taking advantage of wildness and two errors plus two hits, scored the quartet of runs which tied the count.

"Eddie" Ray was the winning pitcher with the defeat going to "Russ" Morris who relieved "Charlie" Teschner in the fifth.

It was the third straight loss for Council Rock.

ST. ANN'S TO PLAY TRENTON PIRATES HERE TONIGHT

St. Ann's A. A. will play another home game in the Trenton Industrial League this evening as it meets the Trenton Pirates on Memorial Park field. Game will begin at six o'clock.

The Trenton Pirates, managed by Fred Scully, won out over the "Saints" in a hard-fought game in Trenton last week. Score was 5-4. The Pirates' record for the season is two wins and four losses.

Manager "Spike" Scordia, of the "Saints" will start "Danny" Keegan or Tony Cauti on the mound with Franks behind the plate.

FLEETWING ESTATES OVERPOWERS 3M TEAM

A powerful Fleetwings contingent completely over-powered the 3 M's club in a Bristol Industrial Softball League tilt last evening on the Hunter-Wilson diamond. Final score was 9-1.

A combination of fine hurling by "Dick" McKinney and Paul Paoletti held the losers to four scattered hits, two going to Buller and the other two to St. Ann and Indelicato. It was Paoletti who stopped a 3 M's scoring threat in the final inning.

Both teams scored a run in the first frame but in the second, Fleetwings tallied six times on a barrage of singles and a home run from the bat of Joe Plebani.

3 M's: Buller p, St. Ann ss, Space 2b, Sooby cf, Arrowood 1b, Manzo rf, Indelicato cf, Girotti 3b, Gasline p, Valpoint 1b.

GAMES RAINED OUT

Both games of the Bristol Suburban Softball League were rained out last evening. Franklin was leading No. 1 Fire Company, 3-1, when the downpour prevented the firemen from getting their fifth bat which would have made it a legal game. Tullytown and Jefferson were about to start their contest when rain intervened.

"BIRTH OF SOIL" SHOWN THROUGH MEDIUM OF FILMS

NEWTOWN PROGRAM

NEWTOWN, May 25 — Mr. Paul L. Gruber, of Quakertown, was the first speaker at the opening session of Bucks County Natural Science Association held at Newtown Friends Meeting House, Saturday, with 25 in attendance.

Mr. Gruber presented the subject "Birth of the Soil" by showing sound films in color which are now in the film library of Bucks County, Department of Public Instruction. The material for the films was gathered largely by New York and Brooklyn Botanic Gardens and produced under the Conservation Foundation. It was pointed out that "The lives of us all depend on the six inch top soil, which has taken centuries to produce. Air, rocks, sunlight and water all played a part. Temperatures bring about expansion of rocks. Glaciers act as a giant file. Bacteria, insects, earth worms are aids in producing good top soil. Lichen are nature's pioneers in plant life. Only 25% of U. S. land has top soil suited to crops and of these acres, great quantities of soil is lost yearly by erosion. Forests are reservoirs and guardians of soil. Floods, drought and wind are dangers in soil saving. Owners of land should realize that they are merely trustees who must pass their acres on to others without despoiling the forest or depleting the humus of the soil."

The second speaker was Lester S. Thomas, of Richboro, an active member of the Neshaminy Valley Nature Club. He had been asked to talk on "Beaks, Tails, Posture and Wing-beats of Birds." He said the colors and songs of birds are far more glamorous subjects but a real bird student is much interested in identification of birds at a distance through some special motion or shape of wing. Beaks are hard to see in many instances in bird study, but they are of maximum use to the bird who can sometimes exist without a wing or a foot but not if the beak is gone. "The beak is the food-getter, the construction implement and the defense weapon. Many a carpenter's tool has its counterpart

Goodwill Co. Purchases Former Gas House Site

Goodwill Fire Company, No. 3, has purchased the site of the former gas house from the Philadelphia Electric Company, located on Millin street, extending from Swain to Linden streets. It is the plan of the company to build a new and modern fire station, with quarters for social activities.

The site is centrally located in the third ward, and affords easy access from three streets.

The lot is "L" shaped, and the trustees of the company, James Lavenberg, Nicholas Court and John Glowowski, think it will be readily adaptable for the purposes of the company.

Plans have not yet been prepared for the new building, and no decision made as to disposal of the present fire station.

CHARLES W. HUNTER
President of the Hunter Manufacturing Corp. at Bristol

Charles Hunter is county chairman of the U. S. Treasury Department's volunteer Savings Bonds committee. That means he's the Treasury Department's representative on matters concerning Savings Bonds. And when you remember that 80 million Americans own Savings Bonds today, you can see how important a job that is.

Yes, 80 million of us own Savings Bonds. We own more today than ever before—far more than during the war. Seven billion dollars more than on VJ-Day. Today's total is 53 billion dollars. And almost 32 billion of that is in the popular Series E Bonds.

DOROTHY RITTER HAS A TRIP TO HOLLAND

WILL GO TO ITALY

A visit to Holland is described in a remarkably interesting manner by Miss Dorothy Ritter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ritter, 566 Swain street. The young woman, who was a former WAC corporal, and who is now employed by the United States government in Frankfurt, Germany, has visited a number of countries during the past several years. The visit to Holland, made in company of two girl friends, is described in a letter here given in part:

"Well, our trip to Holland over the Easter holidays was wonderful. It certainly is a lovely little country. So very clean! You know, you always heard that the Dutch people scrub even the streets. Well, it is true. And windows, I've never seen such sparkling ones in my life. I swear there isn't a dirty window in all of Holland.

"Amsterdam is a very nice, modern city. Our hotel was in Amsterdam, and we took daily trips to the surrounding area from there. One of our trips was to Volendam, where the people still wear the colorful old Dutch costumes, complete with wooden shoes. I bought two dolls there dressed exactly like the people. I'm going to try to get dolls like that from each country that I visit and add these that I get over here to the Chinese dolls. Then some day Diane will be able to take them all to school with her.

"Our guide was very good and

GET YOUR STREET SET FOR FINAL JUDGING

Women's Ward Competition Committee to Judge This Week

PLAQUES ARE READY

Is your street all set for the final judging in the Women's Ward Competition of Clean-Up Week? Is your home, your yard, your gutter, and your street all spic and span? Are you cooperating with your neighbors in getting vacant lots cleaned up? Has every scrap of loose paper disappeared from the area in which you live?

Mrs. Harry Almond, the chairman of the Women's Ward Committee for the Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Drive, announces that her Ward Captains are doing their final judging this week.

The captain of each ward will select the street in her ward which has made the greatest improvement during the campaign and presents the best general appearance on the basis of clean pavements, gutters, yards, and the general neatness and attractiveness of the properties. This street will be designated the "Street of the Ward."

Then during the week-end three judges selected by the Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up, Committee of the Chamber of Commerce will choose the "Street of the Month" from among these six streets. The Rev. E. G. Yeomans, Chairman of the Committee on Awards for the Campaign, states that the plaques designating the "Streets of the Ward" and the "Street of the Month" will be placed on the appropriate streets next week.

The following citizens have taken part in canvassing the town, interviewing householders, distributing questionnaires, window stickers, and lapel buttons:

FOUND BY CARETAKER

Death overtook an aged Bristol man this morning while he was engaged in planting flowers on the grave of his wife.

The deceased is Thomas K. Gorton, 80, who resided with his daughter, Mrs. Roy Ott, 269 Monroe street.

Mr. Gorton had gone to Bristol cemetery by bus. The caretaker had passed near the Gorton plot once and saw Mr. Gorton busy at his task of planting the flowers. Passing there again a short time later, the caretaker, Lawrence Rhoades, found the lifeless body of Mr. Gorton by the grave.

The elderly man had been under the care of a physician. He was an employee of Fayette Plumb, Inc., Philadelphia.

Mr. Gorton's late wife was Clara Todd Gorton. His survivors include his daughter, Mrs. Ott, of Bristol; a son, Russell Gorton, Philadelphia; a grandson; and two brothers, Louis B. Gorton, Mill street, Bristol; and George Gorton, of Crofton.

The deceased was a member of Bristol Lodge, No. 376, B. P. O. Elks.

JUDGE KELLER DIRECTS JURY TO ACQUIT WOMAN

Gives Instructions to Return A "Not Guilty" Verdict In The Case

NOT SUFFICIENT CASE

Miss Lois R. Kurz, Davisville, Was Charged With Failure to Identify Himself

DOYLESTOWN, May 25 — President Judge Hiram H. Keller gave a jury binding instructions and directed a verdict of not guilty in the case of the Commonwealth against Miss Lois R. Kurz, 19, of Davisville, a telephone operator at Hatboro.

She was charged with failure to submit identity and failure to render assistance at the scene of an accident at Oakford's intersection of the Bristol Road and the Old Lincoln Highway, on the night of May 2, during a heavy rain storm.

After Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, of Doylestown, counsel for the defendant, had asked for binding instructions, the Commonwealth, represented by Attorney Donald Vanartsdalen, agreed that the Commonwealth had not made out a sufficient case to warrant its presentation to a jury.

For the Commonwealth, the main witnesses were Sgt. John J. McGowan, USA, of Bristol, and Trooper John M. McDonough, of the Langhorne sub-station of State Police.

Sgt. McGowan testified that he was on his way home to Bristol after visiting friends on the night of May 2. He stated that when he approached the intersection at Oakford, he stopped his car at a "stop sign," put the car in low gear and started across the intersection.

"From that moment on I don't remember anything; I woke up in the Nazareth Hospital with a head injury."

Henry Plaaque, proprietor of the Oakford Tavern, testified that he heard the crash of cars. His wife, Bertha, testified that she too heard the crash, ran outside and saw the soldier's car and another car—the

A SNIP OF DISASTER

To those who live and work above ground, the first trip through any of New York's traffic tunnels is almost always a harrowing experience. Few do not have a claustrophobic desire to get out into the open.

The greatest fear seems to be that something will happen to the engine, or the car, leaving the passengers stranded in the dim and noisy tiled pipe. It is easy to sniff disaster in the place.

Recently the situation that millions of drivers have feared actually took place. A truck loaded with a highly inflammable chemical cargo exploded in the Holland Tunnel, setting off a series of other explosions. Drivers reacted in entirely human fashion and dashed for the exits.

Disaster crews, trained for just this sort of thing, went into action. Remarkably, there were no fatalities, although 66 persons were burned or overcome by escaping chemical fumes. The most horrid possibility, a rupture and flooding of the tube, never did happen, although news pictures showed the tube a shambles. In three days normal traffic was restored.

Explosive cargoes have been outlawed from the tunnel for years, and a system of checking will probably go into effect now. New York traffic authorities — and hundreds of tunnel users — have now had a real sniff of disaster. It was a near thing, and a lesson learned the hard way.

DEATH TAKES A HOLIDAY

Planners are much concerned about the goal of leveling the crests and hollows of the nation's economy, which they proclaim should be as placid as a pond on a windless day. When the economic sea is too rough, some people drown and others get seasick.

So the planners are trying, among other things, to confound Joe Stalin by proving that the waves need not be so rough as to cause the final shipwreck of capitalism. But there's a limit to putting ceilings over and floors under things.

People in the casket business, for instance, would benefit if the government would find a way to keep deaths from falling off. (But, unlike people in many other lines, they wouldn't think of demanding such controls!) A 2 per cent drop in the death rate on top of the present disinflation, is hurting the sale of caskets, and some funeral directors find themselves overstocked.

This is one thing the government won't try to control. If it did, the American people would get themselves a new government. No matter what it does to business and no matter what inducements the government may offer, people will continue to insist on their constitutional right not to die unless they have to.

Russia plans to devise a new bible. "In the beginning Lenin, etc.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Amenemhat Was Right

Washington, May 25.
IN the interesting pamphlet on the Gulbenkian collection issued by the National Gallery of Art and written by Mr. John Walker, chief curator, Amenemhat I, the great Twelfth Dynasty King of ancient Egypt, is quoted as follows: "Be on thy guard against subordinates: approach them not and be not alone. Trust not a brother, know not a friend and make not for thyself intimates that profiteth nothing. If thou sleepest, do thou, thyself, guard thine heart. For in the day of adversity a man hath no adherents."

THIS grim and lonely discipline engendered by one of the great rulers of men is, perhaps, much too drastic to apply to Presidents in this country and in these times. Nevertheless President Truman undoubtedly would benefit if he should grasp the entirely sound idea back of this age-old precept. For a considerable portion of his present troubles stems from his failure to understand that except rarely a President cannot afford to say or write things confidentially and in private he would not say or write publicly. Other men may be blunt and outspoken when surrounded by friends but not a President—anyhow, not without risk.

"TRUST not a brother, know not a friend," as old Amenemhat said, may be too rigid a restriction. But at least a President ought to trust exceedingly few and those only after they have been thoroughly tested. He should select his intimates with great care and in talk with them measure well his words. It would be better if he did not indulge in loose conversation about public men and public affairs with anyone, but under no circumstances should he do so with those not closely bound to him by ties of personal loyalty and friendship. Yet, in the past three weeks he has done exactly that in several instances with resulting embarrassment and damage to himself.

THE first was when he declared that one trouble with Congress was that there were "too many Byrds." Mr. Truman thought when he said that he was having a "confidential conversation." It remained confidential just as long as it took the men to whom he talked to get to their hotel. The effect was highly favorable to Senator Byrd and damaging to Mr. Truman in more ways than one. His friends have not made things better by their strained explanations, the last and latest of which is that the President was speaking humorously. Very soon after that Mr. Truman held another "confidential conversation" with a congressman from Wisconsin who began to apologize for the senators from that State. "Oh," said Mr. Truman, in effect, "they are pretty bad but not the worst. The worst pair are from Missouri and the next worst from Indiana. I'll grant you Wisconsin is third." Well, that stayed confidential until the congressman met a newspaper friend from his home State. Now it isn't confidential at all. It did not receive the publicity of the Byrd incident because the criticized senators did not have the same national prominence. But it has been published in a number of papers, and it can be stated that the Messrs. Donnell and Kemp, of Missouri; Capehart and Jenner, of Indiana; Wiley and McCarthy, of Wisconsin, are not unaware of it. These are all Republicans, it is true, but Mr. Truman's confidential comments are well calculated to make them personal as well as political enemies.

THE third incident was a "confidential" letter written by Mr. Truman to a labor leader which did not stay confidential more than a short while. Its contents were construed as a criticism of Mr. Truman's House supporters for compromising on his demand for outright Taft-Hartley repeal. One of these was Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, who had led the Truman fight in the House and the Truman letter was said by unfriendly writers to be a "slap" at Mr. Rayburn.

A considerable stink was stirred up and the White House issued a denial that any "slap" had been aimed at anyone. This denial was accompanied by the rather weird explanation that the uncomplimentary interpretation was based on typographical errors.

AS such incidents accumulate, an ill will that is entirely unnecessary increases. Mr. Truman is a simple and sincere man. He has strong likes and dislikes. He loves to speak his mind freely to those he considers friendly. There is something engaging about this quality, about his impulsive off-the-record utterances. But it seems too bad he does not realize that the old Amenemhat was right and that rulers of nations cannot afford to indulge their impulses nor trust even all their intimates. They are not ordinary men. Their power is so great that even their casual words are important and when repeated are always exaggerated. To make Mr. Truman's risk more pronounced there is in Washington that hostile group of "liberal" press columnists, radio commentators and politicians, affiliated with the old Roosevelt regime, eager to take advantage of every slip. Another fact is that there are "leaks" in his own Cabinet and even among those outside the Cabinet, regarded as "close advisers." It would seem that the more Mr. Truman ponders the trouble caused by his wholly natural desire to be sincere and frank with those he likes and the more he thinks about these "leaks," the sadder he must think the Amenemhat precept.

"I saw the girl walk over to the soldier's car and say 'is anybody hurt?'"

Trooper McDonough testified that when he arrived at the scene of the accident, the girl's car was gone. He said the soldier's car had been struck in the rear. The trooper said that after a hurried trip to the Nazareth Hospital he and another trooper searched the surrounding country for a green car and a girl with a red sweater.

Later in the night, or the early morning of May 3, Trooper McDonough said that they located the green car on Boundbrook Road. The defendant was in charge of the car and the car had a flat tire. She identified herself as Miss Kurz, the trooper said, and admitted that she had been involved in an accident with a soldier's car.

"She told me that she had inquired whether anyone was hurt, at the scene, and that she had left her name and address with someone at the scene, who had appeared when the crash occurred," Trooper McDonough testified.

Judge Keller also ruled that in this case, a verdict of not guilty was to be rendered but that costs be paid by the county, since there was no evidence that Miss Kurz had been in any way negligent or had done anything out of the way.

Members of the jury who heard the evidence and rendered the directed verdict included Mrs. Natalie H. Ashbridge, Hollicong, foreman; George W. Young, Riegelsville; Clara E. Snyder, Bristol; John B. Richard, Argus; J. Bernard Hagan, Richlandtown; J. Samuel Althouse, Ferkasie; Charles Osterman, Andalusia; Albert H. Barndt, Perkaskie; Henry R. Eastwood, Pineville; Florence H. Brantigan, Bristol RD 2; and Hazel M. Munster, Cornwells Heights.

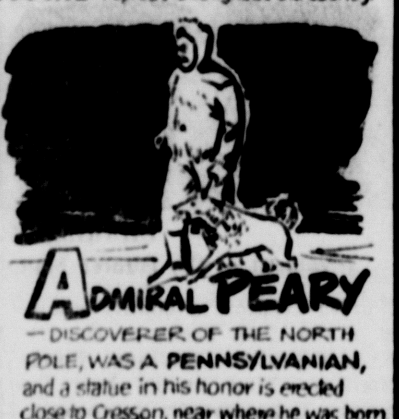

Charles R. Hess, of Phila., who pleaded guilty to driving while drunk on a Bucks county highway when he was arrested by a State trooper, was fined $150 and costs by Judge Keller yesterday.

Frank T. Derry, Jr., of Newtown, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk and was fined $150 and costs.

By doing these things, our county chairman is helping build the financial stability of the whole country. Because these Savings Bonds remain right here in our own country. They represent deferred spending money saved in today's good times to be spent later on when needed. ### Estates Auxiliary Has A Number of Projects

Members of the Women's Auxiliary, Fleetwing Estates Civic Association, met last evening at the home of Mrs. William Smith. Mrs. Carl Lindberg, president, opened the meeting. New members present included Mrs. Robert Green, Mrs. William Drumel and Mrs. R. S. Bartholomew.

Plans were reviewed and final arrangements made for the covered dish luncheon to take place today noon on the lawn of 37 Fleetwing Drive, home of Mrs. Lawrence Harrison.

Mrs. Robert Hyatt, secretary, announced that no reply had yet been received from organizations she had written regarding sources of shade trees, to be set out in the community.

Mrs. Lindberg gave information regarding the Brownie Troop which the Women's Auxiliary is sponsoring; the troop's first meeting was held this same day, with two girls from Fleetwing Estates being members. She said it was customary for a sponsoring organization to have a member attend meetings of the troop committee. Mrs. Hyatt volunteered for this.

Considerable discussion arose concerning the possible formation here of a Boy Scout Cub Pack. Information on this subject will be obtained by the June meeting. Mrs. Lindberg also informed the group that there is soon to be a chance of local training of scoutmasters and den mothers.

Financial support for several organizations was discussed. Mrs. William Eckstein, treasurer, suggested that some new methods of raising money for the auxiliary would be in order. Mrs. Walter Cooper described the "pig in a basket" plan whereby all the neighbors in a community were afforded a chance to contribute in a friendly way. The group agreed to try the plan, with Mrs. Cooper starting the "pig" on his journey.

Mrs. Robert Green suggested that a group outing might be fun to work towards during the summer. More information concerning places and tours will be available at the June meeting, which will be held at 37 Fleetwing Drive. Coffee, tea and shortcake were served.

YOU CAN BUILD YOUR OWN

By MARION CLYDE MCCARROLL

SO you're going to build a house—some day! You have the lot, but costs are higher than you feel you can handle right now, so you're waiting.

Well, have you ever thought of getting around the difficulty by going ahead and building the house yourself? Yes, that's right; with your own two hands.

Don't think you could? Maybe it's not so hard as you think.

In fact, it must be a perfectly feasible job for the average man to tackle, since one of America's famous building authorities, Douglas Tuomey, has written a book to explain to that average man just how he can do it.

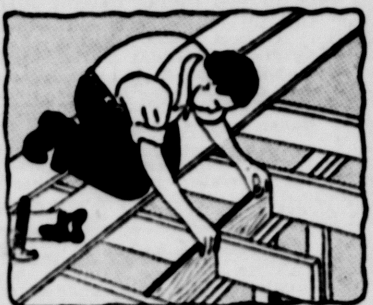

And that's not all. Not only does he make clear every step in the construction of a house from laying the foundation to the last detail of the interior finish, but he tells how to do it for less than $5,000. The title of the book puts the whole thing in a few words: "How to Build Your Own House For Less Than $5,000."

To prove it, Mr. Tuomey shows you eight different types of houses that you can put up yourself, all, of course, under that stipulated $5,000. One of them is a ranch house; another, a country house; still another, a house in the woods; and a fourth, a house for the shore. "The Suburban House," "The Lake House," "The River House" and "The Bay House" are the other four. Architect's blueprints are available at nominal cost for any one of them. The book itself costs $2.95, and should be available in your local bookstore.

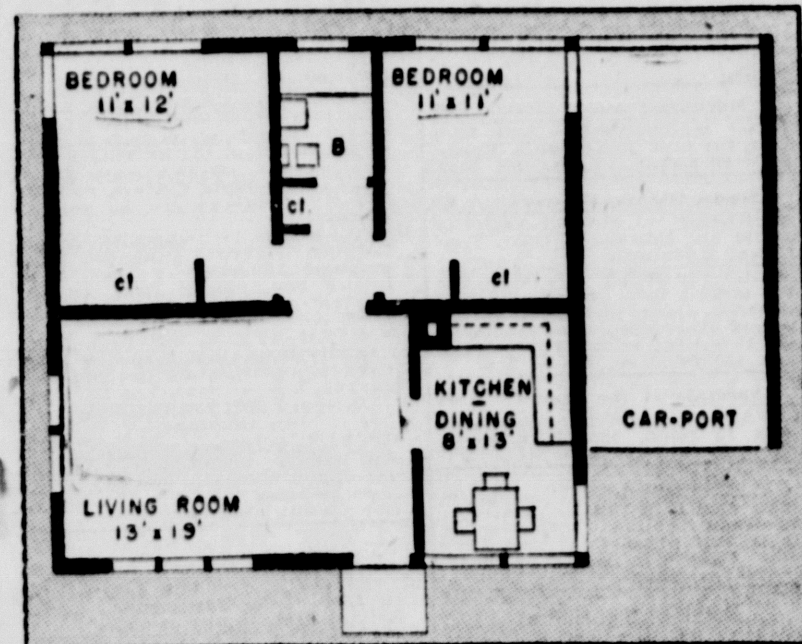

This section of the book, showing the houses, with their floor plans, comes first. After that, Mr. Tuomey gets right down to the business of construction, beginning with preparing the ground for building. Installing the foundations, of course, immediately follows, then the building of the frame of the house and the roof, sheathing the frame, setting in doors and windows and applying the exterior finish.

Putting in the room partitions and otherwise finishing the interior comes next.

How to insulate the house,

AND HERE THE AUTHOR shows the amateur builder how simple it is to lay rafters on top of the wall frame.

THIS IS THE FLOOR PLAN of the house shown at the top of the page. Blue prints are available at nominal cost for this and other houses in the book.

Ancient Trenton Diner Moved To Morrisville Site

Considered one of the oldest diners in the country, the old-fashioned eatery was literally on the move.

of 155 Philadelphia avenue, Morrisville. Mrs. O'Daniels expects to repair the institution and put it into operation again. She says the diner is 62 years old. Its new location has not been decided. Mrs. O'Daniels expects to retain the same pattern of the car during renovations. She recalled the diner once was located at State and Broad streets, Trenton, and in the old days was pulled around the city by horses.

Roy Scarborough, of 506 Perry street, purchased the diner after Forker died and had it moved to a vacant lot directly across the street. Mrs. O'Daniels bought it.

here—as the forceps beak of the vireo, the scoop of the swifts, the awl of the creeper, the chisel of the wood pecker. Finches, sparrows and grosbeaks are seed crackers. The tail of the brown creeper is of unusual curve. A whole group of birds are among the tail wagers. Some of the birds of prey have very erect posture. Short broad wings as of rail and grouse are for quick starting. The long pointed wing of the gull is for slow starting but fast long flight. The soft broad wing of an owl makes him move somewhat like a big moth. The whistle of the wings of the pheasants and the woodcock and the golden eye duck and the dove were compared. The feet of birds were also considered, the weak footed king fisher, the rudder foot of the blue bill, the three front and one hind claw of the perches being among the number. Mr. Thomas illustrated his unusual talk throughout with slides which his son operated.

Matters of business conducted by President Stevenson W. Fletcher covered the naming of Miss Marion Longshore, of Langhorne, to succeed Mrs. Mary W. Peters, resigned, as Delaware Valley Naturalist Union representative; and the reception of four new members. Attention was called to the 15 minute nature talk given each week day morning over the radio by Ivan Sanderson. The next meeting will be a field day trip, June 18th.

and how to install heating, wiring and plumbing, are described in the same painstaking detail. Separate chapters tell you where to buy building materials and supplies, and how to handle housebuilding tools. There's a chapter on building your own furniture, with exact instructions for such useful things as built-in beds, chests of drawers, bookcases and wall seats; another on painting the house, and one that discusses the making of lawns, walks and driveways.

Practical help in the matter of financing the owner-built house is also given. And to forestall the discouragement that may beset the amateur builder when he makes mistakes there's a section cheerfully devoted to "How to Handle Errors, Shortages and Disappointments."

The book is thoroughly illustrated from cover to cover with hundreds of diagrams and photographs so that you have each thing you attempt right before your eyes as you go.

Mr. Tuomey is completely optimistic about the ability of the amateur as a builder. In his introduction he makes the flat assertion that: "The average physically capable man can build his own house with or without the assistance of rough labor."

So, if you have that lot, why wait any longer for that new home?

told us all the history and background material of all the points of interest. Of course that makes it a lot better than just going and looking at things and not knowing anything about them.

And the flowers—words can't describe them. Holland is a very flat country and when you are out in the fields you can see for a long, long distance. Well, for just as far as the eye can see the ground just becomes a carpet of all colored hyacinths, daffodils, narcissus, tulips, lilies and all sorts of beautiful flowers. You just can't imagine what a wonderful sight it is. They are given very good care, because, as you know, these flowers and the growing of them are as important to the welfare of Holland as any other thing they have. I tell you they are so perfect that it makes it hard to believe that they are real.

"I left an order with our guide to send you 100 tulip bulbs. . . 100 is the smallest amount you can order for shipment to the states, and they cost me only 10 guilders, which isn't even $5 in American money."

"Everybody in Holland rides a bicycle. They have special pavements along all the streets and highways for the cyclists. I liked the Dutch people very much. We visited seashore resorts, museums, farms, etc. Also took a boat ride through all the canals. The houses are lovely—all made of brick."

"All during our trip we enjoyed perfect weather. Mrs. McCord and her daughter, who is our boss's family, are now on a trip to Italy. We are eagerly awaiting their return to hear all about it as we three are planning to make the same visit to Italy the first week of July as the fourth, being on Monday this year, will give us a longer week-end."

All members of the Senior Corps of the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, will report at the post home on Thursday at 7:30 p. m., when new uniforms will be distributed and practice will be held. This will be the last practice before Memorial Day.

The corps will report at the post home on Monday, May 30th, at 9 a. m., to turn out with the post for the Memorial Day parade and services at the Legion Memorial Plot at Bristol Cemetery. This will be the first public appearance of the corps and, while the uniforms are not the brilliant hues usually associated with Legion corps, they will be snappy in appearance.

After returning to the post, the corps will have lunch and then travel to Fallsington, where they will participate in the parade and Memorial Day exercises with the Fallsington Post of the American Legion.

The corps still has a few vacancies for former cadet buglers. Any former cadet buglers, preferably veterans, who are interested, may report on Thursday evening or any Monday evening, except next Monday, Memorial Day.

Valley Forge Patients Are Auxiliary Guests

LANGHORNE, May 25—Twenty-seven soldiers from Valley Forge Hospital, Phoenixville, were entertained at a dinner party yesterday afternoon and last evening by members of American Legion Auxiliary in the Soby Post country club home here.

Upon arrival at four o'clock the young men indulged in card games and general sociability, with dinner served at five. The menu consisted of: Fresh fruit—cup, roast beef, gravy, mashed potatoes, fresh asparagus, Harvard beets, cole slaw, celery, olives, rolls, butter, variety of home-made pies, coffee, mints and other candies. Favors at each place consisted of pencils, chewing gum, small packages of candy, and cigarettes. To each guest was presented a ditty bag containing a wash cloth, handkerchief, comb and soap. Eighteen door prizes were awarded, these including flashlights, ball-point pens, puzzles, playing cards, cigarettes and lighters.

The blessing was asked by Roscoe L. Horner, Soby Post member; and the following were introduced by Lynn Poyner, commander of Soby Post: Mrs. Alice Everitt, eastern director, Dept. of Penna.; Mrs. Anthony Cardamone, hospital chairman of Montgomery-Bucks Council of Auxiliaries; Anthony Cardamone, and Mrs. Poyner.

Arrangements for the affair were in charge of Mrs. Frank Buckley, of Pennel, rehabilitation chairman of the Auxiliary. Entertainment planned by Mrs. James Tracy, Humeville, included: violin selections and dances by Mrs. Margaret Johnson; specialty dances by: Joyce Ann Weller, "Peggy" Flanagan, Eileen Tracy, Dominic Sodano, Charles Balderson, and "Hobby" Johnson. Accordion solos were offered by "Betty" Ann Sodano. Group singing by the guests and Auxiliary members was indulged in, with Mrs. Walter Strouse, of Tullytown, serving as pianist.

WEIGHTY MATTER

SEATTLE, Wash. — (INS) — Although Stratoscanners are not sold by the pound, they are carefully weighed before delivery. Three scales are used in the process since the big Boeing ship, with 142-foot wingspan, weighs approximately 30,000 pounds.

Christ Home Worker Is Bristol Banquet Speaker

The annual mother and daughter banquet of Bristol Women's Christian Temperance Union was held last evening in St. James' parish house, the women of St. James' Circle preparing the meal.

The blessing was asked by the Rev. George E. Boswell, rector of St. James, after which a moment of silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Therna Webb—at the time of her recent death the president of the union.

Mrs. George W. Braden, vice-president, was toastmistress. Group singing was enjoyed by all. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. Elwood R. Dyer, Jr., and Mrs. William Hakes. The speaker was Robert Isbell, a worker at Christ Home, Warminster, who told of the work that has been done there during the 42 years it has operated to provide a home for destitute children and aged people. The home is operated entirely on faith, he informed, no solicitation of funds ever having been made. The "workers" are those who have given themselves to work without remuneration, but trust, through prayer, that their personal needs will be met. These individuals are responsible for the work of the home. There are "auxiliaries" who go to the home for a time to assist with the work—and the "helpers"—not responsible for the work but who are under the direction of the worker body. These may receive remuneration as is agreed between them and the worker body and may be discharged at any time. "Their whole desire is to aid destitute ones who cannot be helped in other ways, and to prove that God, in answer to prayer, only will support this work," the speaker said.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. Arthur D. Sargis, Pastor
Eddington Presbyterian Church

Dear Father, we thank Thee for this day. Its record has been made. Perhaps we have increased our funds at the expense of friends. It may be that we have compromised where we should have exhibited strong character. Our emphasis may have been on the making of a living instead of the building of a life. For the strength we used this day we give Thee thanks. For the misuse of that strength we are sorry and ask Thy forgiveness. Help us to be better on the morrow. Hear us for Jesus' sake. Amen.

BRISTOL HIGH WINS CHAMPIONSHIP OF LOWER BUCKS COUNTY SCHOOL LEAGUE; DEFEATS LANGHORNE NINE

Bristol High won the Lower Bucks County Championship yesterday afternoon when the arm of "Jimmy" Morrell and the bat of "Bill" Moll combined to produce a 2-0 victory over Langhorne High on Memorial Park field.

It was the sixth straight win for the Warriors and brought their league record to eight wins and one defeat. The closest team to Bristol has won four and lost four.

It was also the second consecutive baseball crown brought to Bristol by Coach Jerry Bloom. Bloom won last season and since coming to Bristol has won two baseball championships and two basketball championships of the Lower Bucks County League.

Morrell, diminutive hurler, was in excellent form as he allowed the visiting team but two hits. Both of these blows came in the second frame, one of the two innings in which the Bristol moundman appeared to be in trouble. He was given fine support by his mates who came through when the fielding was needed.

With the stick, Moll, husky first-sacker, had three hits, one a triple. It was his three-bagger which spelled doom for the Redskins. In the fourth, Moll stepped to the plate with Frank Barbeta on first. He delivered a long three-base knock which enabled Barbeta to score. Moll scored on a hit by Frank Rich.

They were the only markers of the contest as DiToro pitched good ball for the Langhorne team. In the sixth, Mercer batted for DiToro and "Charlie" Maurer pitched the final half of the frame for Coach "Jim" Egli's team.

Morrell retired the Langhorne team in order in the first but ran into difficulty in the second. After Pizzano struck out, Mongillo singled and stole second. Marlin walked but was picked off first. Barbeta to Moll. Hofmann hit safely but Kaupp fled out to Barbeta for the third out.

Only three batters faced Morrell in each of the next trio of innings but in the 6th, trouble again crossed the path of the Bristol moundman. After Mercer went out, Calvin Tobias walked. Caulfield was safe on an error by Vito Basco. Gring went out. Morrell to Moll. "Army" Pizzano was walked to load the bases. But Mongillo's best was a fly which Rich collared in left field.

Three ground balls were handled for putouts by the Bristol infielders in the seventh.

Bristol had an opportunity of adding to its score in the sixth. After Barbeta fled out, Moll singled and Rich was hit with a pitched ball. Petrizzi sacrificed but Joe Dominick grounded out to Hofmann to end the frame.

The Warriors meet Council Rock tomorrow afternoon on Memorial Park field.

PENNSBURY RALLIES IN SEVENTH AND WINS

RICHBORO, May 25 — Pennsbury High rallied in the seventh inning to score four runs to deadlock the score in its game with Council Rock yesterday and then went on to score a run in the extra session to win out by a 6-5 score. It was a Lower Bucks County League game.

The Falcons were trailing, 5-1, as they took their last turn with the stick and taking advantage of wildness and two errors plus two hits, scored the quartet of runs which tied the count.

"Eddie" Ray was the winning pitcher with the defeat going to "Russ" Morris who relieved "Charlie" Teschner in the fifth.

It was the third straight loss for Council Rock.

ST. ANN'S TO PLAY TRENTON PIRATES HERE TONIGHT

St. Ann's A. A. will play another home game in the Trenton Industrial League this evening as it meets the Trenton Pirates on Memorial Park field. Game will begin at six o'clock.

Manager "Spike" Scordia, of the "Saints" will start "Danny" Keegan or Tony Cauti on the mound with Franks behind the plate.

FLEETWING ESTATES OVERPOWERS 3M TEAM

A powerful Fleetwings contingent completely over-powered the 3 M's club in a Bristol Industrial Softball League tilt last evening on the Hunter-Wilson diamond. Final score was 9-1.

A combination of fine hurling by "Dick" McKinney and Paul Paoletti held the losers to four scattered hits, two going to Butler and the other two to St. Amant and Indelicato. It was Paoletti who stopped a 3 M's scoring threat in the final inning.

Both teams scored a run in the first frame but in the second, Fleetwings tallied six times on a barrage of singles and a home run from the bat of Joe Piebani.

GAMES RAINED OUT

Both games of the Bristol Suburban Softball League were rained out last evening. Franklin was leading No. 1 Fire Company, 3-1, when the downpour prevented the firemen from getting their fifth bat which would have made it a legal game. Tullytown and Jefferson were about to start their contest when rain intervened.
